IMAARISHASRHR · PHASE 2 FILM SLATE · DRAFT REVIEW

Video 1 “Demystifying SRHR” — ENG draft · feedback for the designer

File reviewed: V1 ENG draft (1920×1080, 30fps, 98.8s) Against: Kinetic & Cinemagraph scripts — Video 1 build sheet

Reviewed: every beat, frame-sampled + motion-analysed

Overall. Strong bones and the right strategy on screen — warm illustrated family life, health-first reframe, no fear, no clinic, no on-screen stats, and a genuinely excellent closing beat. Two things hold it back from sign-off: the film runs in two different illustration styles with inconsistent character faces, and it’s delivered 16:9 only when the slate spec is a 9:16 vertical master. Fix those two and tidy the end-card and a couple of caption lines, and this is there.

Priorities

P1 One continuous world — fix the two art styles

The film visibly switches between two illustration styles: a warm, bold-outline comic look (cold open, Grace’s living room, Kevo) and a softer, glossier, cooler-shaded look (the couple, the table scene, the final Agneta). The brief’s #1 rule is one continuous world — same faces, same line, same colour — because recognition across the slate is the strategy, not decoration. Right now Agneta and the ‘mother’ read as different people in different scenes. Pick ONE style (the warm bold look matches the Field Guide and toolkit) and bring every beat to it.

P2 Character identity & continuity

Lock each face to the character bible. Beth should open the film at the sufuria (not anonymous hands). The ‘mother’ in beat 5 must be the SAME Grace as beat 3. Agneta must look identical in the homework shot and the closing shot. Keep each anchor feature (head-wrap, uniform, etc.) constant.

P3 Aspect ratio — deliver the 9:16 vertical master

This draft is 16:9 (1920×1080) only. The production spec is a 9:16 vertical master (feed-first on mobile), then 1:1 and 16:9 exports. A landscape-only cut won’t serve the channels this film is made for. Confirm the vertical master is coming, and that captions/safe-areas are composed for 9:16.

P4 End-card completeness

Add the @handle and the tagline to the end-card, matching the shared slate end-card exactly.

P5 Caption copy vs script

Captions paraphrase the VO, which is fine, but two lines lose SRHR meaning: beat 5 (‘about her body… without shame’ → ‘a question… without fear’) and the dropped ‘Deciding, as partners’ (beat 4). Re-tighten to the script so the health→rights logic survives. Also: use proper em/en dashes, not hyphens, throughout.

P6 Honour the one-motion rule everywhere

Beat 8 is the model: a single blink, everything else locked. Beat 1 breaks it with a full-frame push-in plus a stirring hand plus steam. Audit every beat so exactly one element moves and the rest is dead still — that stillness is what stops the scroll.

P7 Brand-safety check — in-scene packaging

A ‘MAIZE MEAL’ box with a corn graphic is legible in the cold open. The brief bars real brand marks; confirm this packaging is fully invented/generic and not mistakable for a real product, or soften it out of focus.

What’s working — keep it

Beat 8 — the model. Motion map (red = what moves). Only the eyes move — a single blink, everything else locked. This is exactly the one-motion rule, and it's the best beat in the film.

End-card — logo & wordmark land cleanly, but the @handle and tagline are missing (P4).

The two issues to see

Style A (beats 1–3): warm, bold-outline comic look — matches the Field Guide & toolkit.

Style B (beats 4,5,8): softer, glossier, cooler shading — different faces. Pick one world (P1).

Beat 1 motion map. Almost the whole frame moves (push-in + stirring hand + steam), not the locked "steam-only" cinemagraph the script specced (P6).

Cold open. Opens on anonymous hands, not Beth's face (P2). Also check the legible "MAIZE MEAL" box is invented, not a real brand (P7).

Beat-by-beat against the script

BEAT	TIME	WHAT THE SCRIPT ASKS / WHAT'S ON SCREEN	FLAG	NOTE
1	0–16s	Cold open — kitchen, steam off the sufuria Wide kitchen → close-up of the ugali pot, hand stirring. Caption: "What comes to mind when you hear... 'SRHR'?"	⚠	Thumb-stopper works, but it is NOT the locked cinemagraph specced. Script = "steam curls off the pot; everything else dead still." Here the whole plate does a push-in AND the hand stirs — multiple/global motion (see motion map). Also the opening character was meant to be Aunty Beth at the sufuria; the draft shows only anonymous hands — we lose the face that anchors the family.
2	16–23s	Kevo — "For most of us — not much" Kevo, red cap, shrug, flat blue field. Caption matches.	✔	On-script. Confirm the blue is a brand token, not an off-palette blue. Use an en-dash "—", not a hyphen "-".

BEAT	TIME	WHAT THE SCRIPT ASKS / WHAT'S ON SCREEN	FLAG	NOTE
3	23–43s	Mama Grace feeding one child, another at homework Living room, Cucu photo on wall. Caption: "It's a mother choosing when to have her children — so she can care for each one."	✔	Scene on-brief and warm. Only issue is length — this beat holds ~18s, roughly a fifth of the film on one still. Tighten.
4	43–47s	The couple planning over one phone Caption: "It's two people planning their future — together."	⚠	Reads well, but the art style changes here (see style note). Script line "Deciding, as partners" is dropped.
5	47–57s	"A girl who can ask" An older woman + a young woman at a table. Caption: "It's a girl who can ask a question — without fear."	✕	Two problems. (a) Character ID: script = Agneta + Mama Grace, but the mother here looks like a different (aunt-type) figure, and does not match the Grace of beat 3. (b) Copy drift: the SRHR meaning is softened — "ask about her body... without shame" became "ask a question... without fear." Restore the bodily-autonomy specificity.
6	57–63s	Men inside the conversation Baba Tom + a CHP on a bench. Caption: "It's men who are part of the conversation."	✔	On-brief. CHP lanyard reads clearly. Confirm the one motion (drifting leaves) is present and singular.
7	63–75s	Value montage — Health · Family · Dignity · Choice Single words land on each still.	⚠	Good device. Confirm "Health" actually lands on the first still (the sampled frame showed the band still empty). Four words, four stills — keep them evenly timed to the music.
8	75–85s	Final face — "...and yes, it's your right." Settle on Agneta, direct to camera. Caption: "This is sexual & reproductive health. And yes — it's your right."	✔	Best beat in the film. The one-motion rule is textbook here: a single blink, everything else dead still (see motion map). This is the standard every other beat should hit.
9	85–98s	End-card Logo mark + "ImaarishaSRHR" wordmark on white.	✕	Incomplete. The spec end-card is logo mark + handle + tagline, identical across all five films. The draft has no @handle and no tagline. Add both — this is the recognition button for the whole slate.

Flags: ✔ on-script · ⚠ minor fix · ✕ needs rework. Voiceover was reviewed against the on-screen captions and script; please confirm the final ENG audio mix and the Kiswahili / Sheng versions separately.
